THE COST OF LIVING.

Representative Frank Clark of Florida has struck a heavy blow at the pessimistic reports of the "high Nicaragua" "weeps while bound hand cost of living." He went out with a foot and the infamies of her evil friend in Washington the other even- sons, who have auctioned her off for ing—in the National capital, where the cursed money of Judas." Rather the cost of living is supposed to have neat metaphor, that.

According to the writer, "Panama sections of the country—and he tells is content with her destiny. She of his experience, as follows:

"I demonstrated that we could go out and spend an evening on some- fore her banner. And she knows that thing less than a dollar, including the waves of two oceans murmur dinner and the theater. We went to maledictions." Poor Panama!

Colombia is said to be wounded but car tickets costing less than 3 cents. In peace. Looks to the future, and We had a good dinner of stew costing says: "Justice delays, but will come." 10 cents each and strawberry short. But no hint of Judas money is made cake at five cents for dessert. Total in connection with the payment of so far, 39 cents. Then we went to a the American millions.

show, costing 10 cents each, enjoyed. Venezuela and Ecuador are among a performance of an hour and a half those which are also looking to the and used two more car tickets to go future—a future which possesses an home. The entire evening's enter- limited rifles and never-ending revo- tainment's and refreshments cost me lutions. Paraguay looks around her just 68 cents—and I don't believe any- and resolves to follow the good ex- ample of her neighbors.

There is no doubt that in almost any Chile, Brazil, Bolivia, Uruguay and Argentina are mentioned as the only evening is available, and there are nations to the south which are enjoy- few who could not get even a better ing the fruits of peace and civiliza- dinner—or supper, as you will—for a tion. Argentina being mentioned as the most advanced of all of them, a sentiment in which all the world will agree. The writer did not state, how- ever, that it was mainly because Ar- gentina was inoculated many years ago against the Latin-American fever, which manifests itself in periodical outbreaks which are only cured by an application of sulphur, saltpeter and charcoal.

For, whether he is in the habit of spending so simple an evening or not, Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras and it is certain that there are few with the income he enjoys who would be content with so simple a meal, or so modest an evening's entertainment.

The trouble is, as Clark endeavored to point out, that the majority of the American people, even those in much more modest ways of life than a con- gressman, are in the habit of eating sons killed by a firing-squad at the at much more expensive restaurants and patronizing much costlier the- aters.

We frequently read of the simple lunches of great men, from President Wilson down, but the people in moderate circumstances do not, as a rule, nowadays patronize the ten-cent lunch counter, except it be for their noonday lunch. They are in the habit of eating more than a cheap bowl of stew, even though topped off with a slice of strawberry shortcake.

The "movies" have made it possible for the modern American to see a cheaper show than those of a past generation, whose one cheap form of entertainment was the ten-twenty- thirty "repertoire" company. There are today many theaters where a good seat can be obtained for ten cents to see as good a vaudeville performance as our fathers were wont to pay $2 to see.

But the average department clerk in Washington does not as a rule go to the ten-cent shows. He prefers a $2 seat at a good performance, and when he eats at a restaurant he is more apt to call for a planked steak with mushrooms than for a ten-cent bowl of stew, nourishing though the latter be.

The clerk who would walk down the streets of Washington with a $10 "Grand Army" suit and a 50-cent straw hat has given way to the one who patronizes a good tailor and wears an imported Panama. The old-fashioned clerk might have saved more money. It is true, but he was not apt to enjoy his skimpy life as does the modern employe his broader view of the present. And the high cost of living will keep pace with the demand of the people for better things.

LATIN AMERICA'S AWAKENING.

Under the above caption, a writer in "Union Ibero-Americana" sounds a loud trumpet call to all Latin Amer- ica, and incidentally shows that of all the Latin-American nations there are but three or four who have govern- ments worthy of the name, and the rest are suffering from the chronic disorders to which the race is sub- ject.

Speaking of Mexico, he says: "Mex- ico, who since the fall of Porfirio Diaz entered upon a tragic night of inter- ine war, at this moment has stopped her descent toward the abyss. Before the peril of the imperial eagles her sons have checked their ardor and are preparing to lay the foundation of their nationality."

Porto Rico is mentioned as "be- neath the yoke of the Yankee," but is said to be preparing for indepen- dence, inspired thereto by "an apostle from Colombia." He says: "This of the cause. Vacation will soon be over, for me."

"I embrace every opportunity to say something concerning the won- derful advantages of Southwest independence," although suffering from intervention. The writer admits opportunity of a lifetime, with so that "order obtains," but hopes that many advantages in all lines and di- the "spirit of Martí will inflame the rections, and the question with me is, heart of President Menocal that he why do not a greater number of peo- may not abandon his power without ple see things as they are?"

The third heavy shipment of Mexi- can constitutionalist money to reach this city within the past ten days con- signed to Y. R. PASSENGER TRAFFIC HEAVY NOW

Many People Are Coming and Going Between Laredo and Points in Mexico These Days.

The passenger traffic over what was formerly the National Lines of Mexico, but now called the Constitutional Lines, between Nuevo Laredo and Monterrey and Saltillo is quite heavy just now and each outgoing and incoming train has large lists of passengers, both American and Mexicans, as well as people of other nationalities.

The passengers who leave Nuevo Laredo after having passed through this city are destined for various parts of Mexico, while those on the incoming trains are likewise from different sections of the republic. It is surprising the number of Americans who are returning to Mexico just now after having previously fled to the States when hostilities seemed imminent, and most of them are going back to resume the vocations or take charge of the business which they abandoned when Americans were advised to get out of there. Many of the wealthy Mexican refugees are likewise returning to their homes.

Many of those who are coming from Mexico comprise in the most part people coming to this country on business trips, and all assert that as soon they transact that business they will go back to the land of Montezuma. Some are inclined to believe that the revolutionists will soon have control of the government and that prospects for peace are very encouraging, while others are fearing serious consequences from the Villa-Carranza controversy, but these latter will be prepared to come to the United States on very short notice if they deem such a move advisable.

MAJOR SOTO IS NOW A PRISONER

Former Commander of Nuevo Laredo in Jail; Several of His Subordinates Arrested Today.

According to a telegram received in Nuevo Laredo this morning from Saltillo ordering the arrests of several constitutional military officers of that city, formerly members of the command of Major Soto, the subordinates and their chief are in a very bad predicament with some very serious charges pending against them.

The men ordered arrested were immediately taken into custody and are now incarcerated in Nuevo Laredo. The telegram ordering their arrest also stated that Major Soto was taken into custody yesterday and is now in the Saltillo jail charged, it is reported, with insubordination and misappropriation of private property while military commander of Nuevo Laredo, of which responsible position he was relieved last week upon the return of Lieutenant Colonel Marietta. It had been rumored for several days that Soto was in bad repute with the men higher up in Saltillo. He was called to Saltillo ostensibly for the purpose of being given another command, but also, he came to grief and is now being restrained.

As commander of Nuevo Laredo Major Soto was not very popular and his removal was eagerly awaited, and this was plainly indicated when a great demonstration took place in Nuevo Laredo upon the return there recently of Lieutenant Colonel Marietta.

SCRIPTURE.

Isaiah 11:1-9.

And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Branch shall grow out of his roots:

And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of fear of the Lord;

And shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of the Lord; and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears:

But with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth; and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked.

And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins.

The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fating together; and a little child shall lead them.

And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together; and the lion shall eat straw like the ox.

And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice' den.

They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain; for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea.

DO YOU GIVE YOUR PLANTS A BATH?

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside a contributor, writing an article entitled "Plant Pests and How To Get Rid of Them," says that the first thing to consider among the plagues that attack plants is the common one of dust. Plant leaves are covered with countless little pores through which the plant lives and breathes. Cleanliness is necessary therefore to its life and growth while dust fills up the pores, suffocates the plant and threatens its life. Following is an extract from the article:

"One especially successful grower of house plants makes it a point to dip them into a tub of lukewarm water (usually the subsiding or rinse water left from the family wash) at least twice a month. To do this she places her hands firmly about the plant and over the top of the pot, thus holding the soil fast therein. Then turns the plant upon its side, submerging the entire foliage and gently waving it back and forth for a moment beneath the water. The presence of some soap in the water does not harm them in the least. This, of course, is too rough a treatment for buds and blossoms, except in the case of some of the incessant bloomers, such as exalis, impatiens, abutilons, etc., which a thorough drenching will not harm."

WINTERS CASE TO TRIAL.

Newcastle, Ind., July 9.—Another chapter in the Winters "kidnapping" case will be started in the circuit court here tomorrow, when Dr. W. A. Winters, father of the missing child; her step-mother, Mrs. Byard Winters, and W. H. Cooper, a former boarder at the Winters home, are to be placed on trial on charges made against them some weeks ago. The three are charged with "conspiracy to commit a felony by conspiring to kill the child by strangling or otherwise, and to destroy the body by burning."

The question uppermost in the minds of all the people of Newcastle today is whether the coming trial will solve the mystery of the disappearance of nine-year-old Catherine Winters. Most persons who have followed the case closely incline to the opinion that the mystery will not be solved.

Catherine Winters disappeared on March 20, 1913. The child had been canvassing the neighborhood in which she lived, trying to sell needles for a church society. She was last seen late in the afternoon and when she did not return home it was believed she had gone to the home of a neighbor for dinner. The police were not notified until the next day.

The child was the daughter of Winters by his first wife, who died several years ago. Catherine and her little brother inherited $3,000 on the death of their mother.

For many months after the disappearance of the little girl a nationwide search was made for her. The father made many trips, some to distant parts of the country, to run down possible clues as to the whereabouts of the child. Her picture was displayed in moving-picture theatres throughout the country in the hope that someone might recognize the little girl.

From time to time reports have been circulated that Dr. Winters was not sincere in his search for the missing child and that he had used a considerable part of the funds raised to conduct the search for other than the purpose intended. Matters reached a climax on May 30 last, when Dr. Winters, his wife and Cooper, the former boarder, were taken into custody. At the same time a search was made of the Winters home in an effort to find something that might throw light on the mystery. The search is said to have disclosed a red sweater and a red ribbon used for the hair concealed in a cement block in a wall under the house and a red-stained garment under a furnace ventilating pipe. Encouraged by the finding of the clothing, the police took up the cellar floor and other parts of the premises with a view to learning whether or not a body might be concealed. A similar search was made of another house formerly occupied by the Winters, but so far as has been made public the investigation failed to disclose anything that would indicate that the child had been murdered.

Dr. Winters, his wife and Cooper have been at liberty on bail since their arrest. All three stoutly maintain their innocence of the charges made against them. They declare that the disappearance of the child is as much a mystery to them as to anyone.

Coper is a railroad telegraph operator, and has been in Newcastle about seven years. According to his own statement he went to Indianapolis March 24, 1913, four days after the disappearance of the child, and did not return until March 31, 1913.

One of the most baffling features in connection with the case is the apparent lack of motive either for the kidnapping or the murder of the child. A thorough investigation was conducted on the theory that the little girl might have been stolen by gypsies, but not the slightest clue was found to support the theory. On the other hand the financial circumstances of Dr. Winters seemed to preclude the idea that the child may have been kidnapped for the purpose of securing a ransom. Both of these theories were long ago dismissed as unreasonable by the detectives employed to investigate the case.

On the other hand, there appears to be no adequate evidence indicating a motive for the murder of the little girl. One theory advanced by the detectives connects Mrs. Winters and Cooper, and the other is that the child might have been unwelcome at the home. So far as public knowledge goes there is absolutely nothing to substantiate either theory.

There is a reward of $2,300, out-standing in connection with the case, but most of the money is for the safe return of the child alive. The mayor of Newcastle, the judges of the local courts and the bankers and leading business men of the city all have contributed to the fund and have otherwise lent their aid in the efforts that have been made to solve the mystery.

From Wednesday's Daily.

While reassuring and even cheerful reports come from Saltillo regarding the prospects of peace between Villa and Carranza, one report even saying that Villa will go to Saltillo to "seal the bond between himself and Carranza," from Torreón come other reports which are not so optimistic as regards the result of the conferences.

One statement from a man close to Villa was that there was no hope of peace between the two until Carranza should change his attitude, and that the dismissal of Gen. Angeles from the constitutional army was a direct slap in the face for Villa, while at the same time the agents of Carranza were endeavoring to bring about harmony.

The Torreón despatches state that there is a hopeless deadlock in the conferences there, which would appear on the face of it to be somewhat authoritative, especially as the men right on the ground might be expected to know more about the affair than those at Saltillo, many miles away.

It is, of course, natural that Saltillo should send out messages intended to reassure Carranza's followers. All who remain at the Carranza headquarters are presumed to be friendly to the "first chief," or they would not be there. And no one in Saltillo would dare to dispute the official statements which Carranza's staff are sending out.

If Villa really does go to Saltillo, there is a prospect that he will go for the purpose of demanding some concessions from Carranza which the mediators are not authorized to grant. And failing the granting of the demands, it is even probable that he will do as his friends said a few days ago—place Carranza under arrest and proclaim Angeles as the new "first chief."

Carranza naturally realizes what a blow to his pretensions the continuance of the break would be. Pompous, ever been, he is not entirely devoid of common sense. And he cannot fail to realize that an agreement with Hamlet left out would be like Hamlet with the Prince of Denmark absent from the cast. The world would move along just the same—probably with less friction—were he to be eliminated.

It is probable that he will understand the situation sufficiently to make whatever concessions Villa demands, for only by so doing can he hope to retain the following which yet remains to him. He has called Urquidí to Saltillo for the purpose, it is announced, of administering a rebuke to him for having written or inspired articles in praise of Villa. Now the Tampico rebels are still collecting the dredging tax from the lagoon for a conference in Saltillo, and others who once hailed Carranza as their leader may be ready to cross over to Villa when the psychological moment arrives.

The refusal to permit Villa to receive any more ammunition was only a momentary humbling of the bandit chief; it did not result in any advantage for Carranza. The further attempt to belittle Villa by refusing to honor the fiat currency which he had circulated was only calculated to arouse the resentment of the victorious soldier. The Villa money is worth just as much as the Carranza money; neither are worth a cent to anyone save the gamblers who are taking a long chance on its redemption at some future date.

But the break is not yet patched, no matter what the Saltillo reports.

A SANE FOURTH.

The reports which come in from all parts of the country indicate that there was no doubt reason for the campaign for a "safe and sane fourth" which has been waged for the past few years. According to the tabulated reports, the country spent the quietest fourth in its history, the deaths only numbering 13 and the injured 243, as against 32 dead and 1131 injured last year.

A sample of the reckless daring which caused some of the fatalities was the case in Pennsylvania where three children, the youngest two years of age and the eldest six years, were killed and a man had his hand blown off.

The man had taken four sticks of dynamite to a friend's house with which to "celebrate." The two-year old baby got hold of one of the sticks of dynamite, bit the cap and the explosion occurred.

The horrible accidents which occurred in some places show that the people are not all educated to the point of a safe and sane celebration. In the large cities, where in former years the fatalities were always numerous, the proper sort of a celebration resulted in few accidents, and those only such as might occur at an ordinary picnic, from falls or upsets, and there was not a single accident of serious nature reported from the cities which had a "safe and sane" celebration, much less a death. There is little excuse for the accidents which usually mar the celebration of the old-fashioned Fourth. They are invariably the result of recklessness, of foolish daring, or of intoxication. The man who causes the accidents is not always the sufferer, and the innocent bystander usually suffers the most.

Many of the small towns used to an ancient cannon which was fired during the day by a self-appointed gunner, in past years a survivor of one of our wars, and lately a militia man of more ambition than skill. In many cases the cannon burst when fired, causing several deaths and many injuries.

In other places, the firing of anvils was the form of "celebrating," and this was not usually attended with more than slight injuries. In places where mining or sump-blasting was carried on, dynamite was available as a noise-producer, and the use of this terrible explosive was almost always attended by fatalities.

But the main cause of the fatalities among the children was the deadly fire-cracker. Fingers were blown off, severe burns resulted, and in most cases the fatal lockjaw set in within a few hours, and the case was pronounced hopeless by the doctors.

One of our greatest assets is our children. The waste in child life merely for a few minutes of fun is too great to be permitted. It is an economical waste, without going into the sorrow of the parents and the gloom that the accidental deaths cast over a community.

Naturally, a small boy cannot be trusted with a deadly weapon, even though he be cautioned as to its proper use. He will always tempt fate with some form of daring, and will do as his friends said a few days ago—place Carranza under arrest and proclaim Angeles as the new "first chief."

The duty of the older people is plain. When carried out as it was in Laredo, there are no evil results. And the day was really enjoyable, despite the lack of casualties.

As a sample of holding out, second only to that of Huerta, how about Guaymas? Niagara Falls, and so do some other places, but Guaymas is still in the hands of the federals, despite the attacks of many months, and from all appearances, seems likely to outlast Huerta.

Now that the crown prince is buried, Austria is rushing artillery to the Servian frontier, and perhaps yet remains to him. He has called King Peter will see reason to congress Urquidí to Saltillo for the purpose, it is announced, of administering a rebuke to him for having written or inspired articles in praise of Villa. Now the Tampico rebels are still collecting the dredging tax from the lagoon for a conference in Saltillo, and others who once hailed Carranza as their leader may be ready to cross over to Villa when the psychological moment arrives.

An "auburn-haired" woman is said to have threatened the life of Dr. Carman, in whose office a woman patient was killed. Move that George Bailey calls the roll, to see if any attempt to belittle Villa by refusing to honor the fiat currency which he had circulated was only calculated to arouse the resentment of the victorious soldier. The Villa money is worth just as much as the Carranza money; neither are worth a cent to anyone save the gamblers who are taking a long chance on its redemption at some future date.

MAKE EXCURSIONS BIG SUCCESS

Conductors and Engineers Have Gained En enviable Reputation for Annual Excursion to Coast.

Reverting to the annual excursion given to Corpus Christi the past week by the conductors and engineers of the Laredo divisions of the Order of the Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, credit was not given those who were responsible for the success of the annual event. This was due Joe Condren as the representative of the conductors and "Jack" Maher as the representative of the engineers, and both these tireless workers used every effort to make the event the success it proved.

Not only were all the excursionists provided every accommodation and convenience possible during the journey each way, but trains were operated with a regularity that added comfort to the trip. The through train from Laredo to Corpus carried just enough people to fill the nine coaches and none others were taken en route for fear there would be a congestion and discomfort to the passengers. The same conditions applied to the special excursion train operated from San Diego and Alice to Corpus.

For the past eighteen years or more the annual excursion of the conductors and engineers to the coast from Laredo has been looked forward to with much pleasure by the people of this section, for they knew when such men as Condren, Maher and others of their calibre had charge of the event given under the auspices of their respective orders it was bound to be a success. And it is to be hoped that in future years the annual excursions from Laredo and intermediate points to Corpus Christi on the occasion of the Glorious Fourth will be continued to be operated under the class of management that is always provided by the conductors and engineers. When the excursions are given under these conditions, instead of by the railroad company proper, the people who each year enjoy the jaunt to the seashore are in advance assured of a pleasant and comfortable journey both ways.

Body Has Not Been Found.

Notwithstanding diligent search was made for quite a distance down the river yesterday for the body of the young Mexican boy who was drowned while bathing near the international foot bridge on Monday evening, no traces of the body could be found. It is now believed by many that as a result of the rise in the river having caused a swift current, the body has probably been carried several miles down the river and will be washed on to the banks some distance below Laredo.

Gave Smoker to General Lee.

The smoker given by the officers of the Ninth Infantry last evening complimentary to Major General Jesse E. Lee, U. S. A., retired, on the lawn adjoining the Ninth Infantry Club on the Fort McIntosh reservation, proved a most pleasant affair, and in addition to the numerous officers present were many guests from the city. Music was furnished throughout the evening by the Ninth Infantry Band. On the scene of the smoker was a circular table encircled by a festoon of Japanese lanterns. During the progress of the evening music, songs and recitations contributed to the enjoyment of the guests, one of the principal features being the portrayal of a side show speller and medicine show fakir, which were ably represented by Captain Loeb. General Lee also favored the assemblage with short talks, interspersed with interesting reminiscences of pioneer days on the frontier, when he, as an officer of the army of Uncle Sam, did service on the then wild and woolly Rio Grande. As a whole these anecdotes were listened to with great interest, and that enthusiasm which often characterizes talks of incidents of bygone days was conspicuous at all times by its absence. There were plenty of eats and drinks in evidence and they were liberally partaken of. Generally speaking, it was an occasion that will long be remembered by all those present.

Dr. Cook has been a practicing physician in Laredo for over two years past, and while his many friends will regret to see him leave here, in the event that he is called elsewhere for service, nevertheless they congratulate him on his appointment to the position he has secured.

The regular meeting of the city council will be held this evening in the council chamber and the city fathers will have before them a number of important matters for consideration.

Another matter which will come up for consideration will be the advertising for bids and the construction of a bridge at some convenient point over the Arroyo Zacate to form a connection by a short route between the city proper and the Heights addition.

TO SECURE NINTH INFANTRY BAND

Committee of Citizens May Solicit Sufficient Money to Employ Band Each Sunday Evening.

The Alexander and others are arranging to circulate a list among the business men and others of the city for subscriptions to a fund to be known as a "band fund" and which will be used in defraying the expenses of band concerts to be given each Sunday evening on the Martin Plaza by the Ninth Infantry Band.

It is proposed to raise the sum of $750, which is the amount necessary to pay for the band concerts once each week during the remainder of the summer season. The Ninth Infantry Band has made a "hit" here and the fine musical selections rendered by this organization are of the kind that the thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed. It is unnecessary to say that the amount of money sought to be raised will be forthcoming and that Laredo music lovers will be afforded the opportunity of hearing concerts each Sunday night by this fine musical organization.

SCOTLAND GREET'S ENGLAND'S

Edinburgh, Scot., July 7.—King George and Queen Mary arrived in Scotland today for the second formal visit they have made since they came to the throne. In anticipation of the royal visit the ancient Scottish capital had donned gala attire, the decorations being the most elaborate that the present generation of Scotchmen has seen.

The King and Queen will spend but a short time in Edinburgh, so that it is not likely that the old apartments of state in Holyrood Palace will see any revival of the pomp and ceremonies of which they were the scene in the time of Mary, Queen of Scots. It is expected, however, that visits will be paid to St. Giles' cathedral, to the old castle, where the Scottish crown jewels are kept, and to other places of historic interest in and about Edinburgh.

Their Majesties will spend the greater part of three days in Glasgow and its vicinity. The King will open the new buildings of the royal infirmary, erected as a memorial to Queen Victoria, and will also open the new royal hospital for sick children. Another day will be spent by their Majesties in an inspection of some of the great shipyards on the Clyde.

A young Mexican boy named Florencio Martinez, aged about ten years, met his death yesterday evening shortly after 6 o'clock by drowning in the Rio Grande. NOTORIOUS BANDIT TO HANG.

Winnipeg, Man., July 7.—The career of John Krafchenko, one of the most notorious bandits who ever terrorized this section of Canada, will come to an end on the gallows here today after tomorrow, unless there is an eleventh-hour respite from the Department of Justice at Ottawa.

The crime for which Krafchenko is to pay the death penalty was the murder of H. H. Arnold, manager of the Bank of Montreal branch at Plum Coulee. The murder was committed while the desperado was in the act of robbing the bank.

Plum Coulee is a town of several hundred inhabitants, sixty-five miles southwest of Winnipeg. Shortly before noon on December 3, 1913, a man, disguised with false whiskers and mustache, entered the bank, forced Arnold to hand over $5,000 and started to leave by a rear door. The manager crapped with him and the bandit fought him off and then shot him through the heart.

The robber ran to an automobile and forced the owners at the point of a pistol to drive him thirty-five miles to the town of Osborne. There he disappeared. A week later Krafchenko was arrested in a house in this city, where he had been posing as a college professor. An outfit of women's clothing and two revolvers were found in his room and a roll of bills from the Plum Coulee bank was discovered under the fence outside.

A month after his arrest and before his case had come up for trial, Krafchenko made a sensational escape from the Winnipeg jail. Armed with an automatic revolver which had been smuggled in to him by friends the bandit covered the two guards placed in front of his cell. While holding the guards with their arms over their heads, he backed to a window and swung out on a rope which had also been smuggled into his cell.

A passer-by saw Krafchenko on the street and ran to the other side of the building to spread the alarm. When the officers rushed out, the bandit had disappeared. For a week the police searched in vain for the desperado. At the end of that time he was found concealed in the room of a friend almost within a stone's throw of the prison from which he had made his escape.

The official investigation of the escape led to the arrest and indictment of several persons on a charge of conspiracy to aid the bandit in gaining his freedom. Among those concerned were those a member of Krafchenko's counsel and one of the jail guards. Two of those who were convicted on the conspiracy charge met their deaths in the falling of a scaffold on which they were at work in the prison.

Early last April Krafchenko was taken to Morden, where he was tried, convicted and sentenced to death. A

A BUILDING ERA.

Although the nine principal cities of the state did not equal the record of last year for the same period by nearly a million dollars, enough permits were granted for building to show the prosperity of the state, the amount for June being $1,812,038.

Dallas granted more than twice the permits of any other city, having over half a million dollars in construction, while Houston comes next with a little over a quarter million and Austin is third with almost the same amount.

San Antonio is the lowest on the list for June, while the other cities after the first three mentioned were, in respective order: Galveston, Fort Worth, El Paso, Waco and Beaumont.

The first six months of the year show about the same falling off—one million dollars—as for the month of June, 1914, and the decrease is principally attributed to the incessant rain which fell throughout the state, jeopardizing the lumber business, resulting in minimized building activities in all sections of the state.

Although the figures are not at this moment available for Laredo, it is certain that we have not had such a building boom for several years as during the first six months of 1914. Several of the structures are now completed, while others are still under construction, and some of the buildings which are to be built are not yet begun.

As a general rule, the increase in building is a certain mark of prosperity, particularly when the buildings include a number of business structures. Here where the population does not increase by jumps, the construction of residences is always in progress, but the new business places shows an increase in prosperity which is gratifying.

Although not a manufacturing city, Laredo has advantages which are not possessed by any other city in the state. Our large supply of natural gas, our great mines of some of the best coal ever mined, a climate which permits of outdoor work during the entire year and our freedom from destructive storms and floods should warrant the establishment of many factories here.

There is a great stock of raw material obtainable from Mexico for many industries, and our land is capable of growing many things which could be shipped abroad for the consumption of people who never saw better products than we can turn out.

There should be a good location here for a catsup factory. There are no better tomatoes grown anywhere than right here in the Laredo district, and other towns without our great facilities are establishing pickle factories, where cucumbers and onions and many other products are put up for shipment.

We import a great many things which could be grown here and manufactured at a profit. We do without many other things which are capable of being grown here, simply because no one has thought to start the industry.

Our cantaloupes and watermelons are equal to any grown in the Valley, but there are not enough of them. We ship in other people's products in the way of canned corn, canned string beans and canned tomatoes, while we have many acres going to waste for lack of cultivation.

Why not interest some experienced canner or packer to come here, and thus start a building boom that will put us on a level with other towns less attractive but better advertised?

THE WORLD DO MOVE.

Apropos of the attempt to force state-wide prohibition on the people of Texas, it may be interesting to some of our readers to learn the extent to which "prohibition" went in the early days of our nation before it was freed from the domination of the British throne.

The following is copied from the famous "blue laws" of Connecticut.

which have frequently been referred to when sumptuary laws of any sort were in discussion, and may show to what extent prohibition may be carried when the people who are fighting for it are in power:

"No one shall be a free man or have a vote unless he is converted and a member of one of the churches allowed in the dominion

"No food or lodging shall be offered to a heretic.

"No one shall cross a river on the Sabbath day but authorized clergy-men.

"No one shall travel, cook vituals, make beds, sweep houses, cut hair or shave on the Sabbath day.

"No one shall kiss his or her children on the Sabbath or feasting days. The Sabbath day shall begin at sunset Saturday.

"Whoever wears clothes trimmed with gold, silver or bone lace above one shilling per yard shall be presented by the grand jurors and the select-men shall tax the estate three hundred pounds ($1500)

"Whoever brings cards or dice into the dominion shall pay a fine of five pounds ($25)

"No one shall eat mince pies, dance, play cards or play any instrument of music except the drum, trumpet or jewsharp.

"No man shall court a maid in person or by letter without obtaining the consent of her parts. Five pounds penalty for the first offense, ten pounds penalty for second offence, and for third offense imprisonment during the pleasure of the court."

It has been frequently asserted that state-wide prohibition was solely for the purpose of putting an end to the saloon traffic, but one of the most determined exponents of that doctrine—the Port Arthur News—acknowledges that it merely means that if Texas goes dry it will be a difficult matter to get a drink.

In fact, it is not at all likely that some of the people who are now voting and working for prohibition expect to be debarred from the privilege of drinking which they now enjoy—and take advantage of. They merely want to make it difficult for the other fellow to get his.

It is but a short step from the prohibition policy to the stand that a man, to be a citizen, shall be "converted and a member of one of the churches allowed." And as a matter of consistency, it would follow that no one should give food or lodging to a heretic. We already have the laws against gambling, and most people acknowledge their justice, but how many would like to see a fine of $25 imposed for bringing cards or dice into the state?

Mince pies were eaten by Church of England people in celebration of certain feasts, particularly Christmas, and the eating of the "abomination" was prohibited by the same people who refused to permit the lergyman or layman of that church to reside in the same dominion. But nowadays the people who once debarred Catholics, Baptists, Quakers and Jews from residence in the community are no longer in the majority, nor do their peculiar views dominate those of others.

Anyhow, even if it was quiet, it was a great Fourth. We don't know when we have had so good a chance to enjoy a siesta.

President Wilson paid a compliment to the congressmen who are spending the summer in Washington to keep up a quorum for business. It is to be hoped that the worthy congressmen will not feel the effects of their summer's work when November rolls around.

Mr. Looney says the Texas Business Men's Association has filed its answer to his allegations "in a court which has no jurisdiction." He meant the newspapers, but he is not the first politician to accuse the papers of trying cases out of court, an accusation not always deserved.

A New York bomb threw people across the street out of their beds. As a celebration device, however, it was a failure, as it had not been properly advertised, and drew but a small crowd.

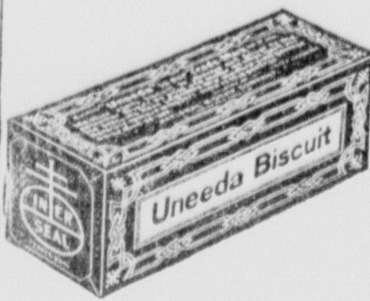

That negro at Calvert who was peevish because some of his race told on him in connection with a horse theft did a very complete job with an axe, killing five and fatally wounding three more. It is believed that he has gone south to join the Mexican rebels, where his talents will be appreciated.

Minister Williams, who publicly criticized the new Albanian ruler, has been asked by President Wilson to resign. He will probably apply for admission to the Ancient Order of Discarded Ambassadors, so ably headed by Henry Lane Wilson.

HAD GOOD TIME AT SEASHORE

Many Attractions Provided Laredo Visitors, Including Program of Interesting Sports.

The six hundred or more Laredo excursionists who went to Corpus on the special train of the conductors and engineers on Friday morning and spent the Glorious Fourth in the seaside city, returned to Laredo last night at 11:30 o'clock, somewhat fatigued from the journey but feeling better from having made the trip to the seashore.

The Corpus celebration this year was far better than any staged in some years past, the program being varied and interesting and providing many features that proved attractive in many ways. Besides the big street parade, there were aquatic sports of different kinds, motor boat races, old-time sports and other pastimes. The new pleasure pier recently completed in Corpus, and conceded by everybody to be the best resort of its kind south of Coney Island, was the mecca for Laredo people and other visitors generally, and here at times were as many as seven thousand people on the pier and its adjuncts. Pleasures of various kinds are in progress—dancing in one large pavilion, skating in another, divers booths with pass-times, Ferris wheel, merry-go-round, spacious promenade, bathhouses, etc. The pier was crowded with visitors day and night during the three days of celebration.

In the ball games the Laredo team fared badly, losing three contests to the Corpus aggregation. In the first game both Capra and Vandever did the slab work for Laredo, but they lost the game by a score of 5 to 0. In the second game Brown, the soldier boy, did the artillery work for the locals, and he pitched a fine game. But after a hard fought contest Corpus won by a score of 3 to 2. The third game, which was played on the afternoon of July 4, was a rank proposition. Capra was on the mound again for Laredo and the kid was determined to make the Pelicans sit up and take notice. The umps, he was rotten, doubtful whether he had ever seen a game of baseball before, or either he had been out the night before, or several nights for that, and could not tell a strike from a ball, or whether men got to bases or not. He was sure a proposition. For seven innings Corpus and Laredo played a scoreless, no-hit game. Then Corpus got a man on third and he risked a chance getting home, and the umps got him there. The runner was tagged at least four feet before he reached home, but Mr. Umps called him "safe." The grandstand, filled with people, yelled "rotten" and many endeavored to get the Laredo boys to quit right then and there. Here the manager of the Corpus Christi team gave out the information that if the game was not finished the Laredo team would not get its prorata of the gate receipts—and the game was finished, for some of the Laredo boys had to have means of getting back home after paying their expenses. The decision at home was only one of several given by that umpire. After that rank pronouncement Laredo ceased to play gilt-edge ball and let Corpus get three more runs, and they themselves were shut out. The man that did the umpiring was not a Corpus man nor was he from Laredo—he came from the cactus somewhere up the road, and he certainly has some things coming to him before he can style himself a judge of baseball. As a rule the Corpus team members treated the Laredo bunch fairly well, and there is no kick on that score, but that umps, he's as made of baseball knowledge as "Sept-ember Morn" is of clothing.

HYMN OF THE AMERICAN FLAG

Composition of Mr. Luis Bruni Will be Set to Music and Published Soon.

A beautiful song, written in the language of Dante and of Verdi—the liquid and rhythmic Italian—the work of Mr. Luis Bruni has just been copyrighted by the author and will be shortly set to music by a noted composer. The song, entitled the "American Flag," is inspired by the lofty, the purest ideals of patriotism and liberty, and it is a pity that the translation into English does not do justice to the beauty of the original, especially as the rhythm of the Italian is lost in translating the song into the Anglo-Saxon. The following will give a faint idea of the beauty of the song in the Italian:

The author in his vision sees the red Mars in the sidereal empire; the warred filled with fury upon thinking of the tyranny of the land of Columbus, tears from the sky thirteen stars and the Sons of Liberty frame them in gold upon the new flag, while the angel of America watches the noble labor.

The sacred emblem of liberty being completed, the fatherland consecrates it as worthy of its sons who died for it, giving their expiring sigh to liberty.

From the temple is heard the sonorous voice of the bells, announcing to the tyrants their last hour, while the trumpets sound the retreat, and the American flag rises to the loftiest tower of the castle.

The citizens in arms are converted into legions and form their battalions in the distant desert, while the rumble of the cannon thunders in the forest, and in all parts of the earth and the sea the battle rages.

From the peak of the rugged mountain the American eagle, the bird of love, looking the sun in the face, extends his wings of liberty and majestically takes his flight, carrying the sacred banner of freedom from one pole to the other.

The original follows:

LA BANDIERA BELLE STELLE E DELLE STRISCIE.
Dalle stellate volte dell' astral impero,
Marte modulando un sublime pensiero,
Stroppo al cielo tredici stelle.....
Le nostre donne, madri, figlie e sorelle.

Le punterono sulla bandiera in oro;
L'angiol della liberta' vello il levare,
Plasmata la sacra vittoriosa insegna,
La Patria la consacro gloriosa e degna.
Degli eroi che per lei moriro,
Dando per l'America l'ultimo sospiro!

Dal tempio, i sacri bronzi, con voce sonora,
Annuncian di tranni l'ultima ora.
Le trombe guerriere tocan l'appello,
La bandiera stellata sventola sul castello!

I cittadini armati, diventan legioni,
Nelle deserte lande formano i bataglioni;
Il cannone dalla bocca rotonda, tuona nella foresta,
Nella terra di Colombo, infuria la tempesta!

Le figlie della liberta', dai capelli biondi,
L'occhi cerulei, li sguardi profondi,
Intreccian sospirando, le corone d'alloro,
Cantando inni alla liberta' ed al lavoro!

Dalla cuspide dell' alto ed aspro monte,
Lucel di glove, mirando il sole in fronte,
Spiega l'ali della liberta', spieca il volo;
Sventolando il sacro labaro da uno all' altro polo.

WAR IN LABOR CIRCLES.

Following the recent convention of the State Federation of Labor, in which the council declared itself as opposed to state-wide prohibition, the Palestine Trades and Labor Council adopted resolutions protesting against the action, of which the following is an excerpt:

"This great body has always stood for salutary laws that are for the betterment and elevation of the toiler, but this body is opposed to introducing an issue into it that is sure to cause strong opposition and produce strife in the ranks of labor."

"Prohibition is an issue upon which the ranks are divided, therefore it is an issue which we have always striven to avoid bringing into the labor convention meetings, believing that each individual should settle this matter for himself."

In which the Palestine council is perfectly right. But the fact of the matter remains that a certain element in the State Federation of Labor attempted to force the endorsement of the prohibition campaign upon the state convention, and the federation properly administered a rebuke by announcing itself opposed to state-wide prohibition.

The fact that the resolution of the state convention was adopted by a large majority should indicate that the majority of the labor men represented at the El Paso meeting were opposed to state-wide prohibition, and the resolution of the Palestine council may or may not indicate that a majority of that body were offended by the action of the convention in such opposition.

But the fact that is that neither prohibition nor any other political move should be discussed—much less voted on—at a labor meeting. The labor organizations are composed of all colors of political persuasion, and it would be no worse to discuss the tenets of religious doctrine than to bring up matters which do not directly relate to the welfare of the workers, especially as there could be no agreement as to political matters save the agreement that they are out of place in labor discussions.

From time to time attempts are made by certain scheming politicians to secure the endorsement of the labor element, either for what they have done or what they promise to do. Usually such attempts meet with the contempt they deserve, although once in a while some candidate is able to "put one over" on his opponent by securing the endorsement of a labor organization.

The only place for a member of an organization which is not purely political in its nature to endorse a principle or a candidate is at the polls. There every one is on a level and each one's opinion is worth expressing.

But to have every labor organization, secret order or church mix in politics—especially such politics as Texas is cursed with at present—is to invite the invidious criticism of every outsider and to threaten the disruption of the organization, no matter what its origin or its aim.

The labor men have enough to keep them busy when they attend to their own affairs at their conventions. They have enough enemies without looking for others, and they need to keep all the friends they have with out estranging any by following after strange doctrines. Keep out of politics, and your life will be longer, and pleasanter while it lasts.

TEXAS BREAKS RECORD.

The United States Geological Survey has just issued a bulletin in which it states that Texas has broken all previous records in her output of coal in 1913, having mined 2,429,141 short tons of coal, which had a value of $4,288,920. The increase over any preceding year was $633,175 in value, while 240,532 tons more or 11 per cent in quantity were mined over the output of 1912.

Classing the coals of the state in quality, the report states that the coal near Laredo, in Webb county, "is changed to a higher grade, approaching cannel in character and classed as bituminous."

It is probable that not one person in a hundred has a just appreciation of the value of the coal fields near this city. Laredo has great beds of valuable brick clay, and could turn out many times the present quantity of brick. There are other natural resources which are of great value.

But the coal which is of such superior quality is perhaps our richest resource. The proper development of the coal industry here would result in an enormous increase in our industrial life, and would draw to this section many factories which could find here advantages which are unknown elsewhere.

Not only in the mining and shipping of the coal is there a great opportunity offered. But at the mines there could be established a great central electrical power plant which would furnish cheap and easily available power for all sorts of manufacturing industries.

The problem of cheap generation and economical distribution of the power available from our coal is one that could be easily solved by engineers. It presents no difficulties which are insurmountable. It is a mere matter of applied mechanics that every technical school graduate could settle in a few weeks of study.

But the problem before the people of Laredo is to make these manifest advantages known to the manufacturers who are looking for a better location—better not only as regards cheap power, but also in the matter of good climate for their workmen.

In many a Northern city there are factories where the workmen are working the greater part of the year merely to supply their actual needs. In the summer they suffer from extreme heat, a goodly part of their income going for doctors and medicine as a result of the torrid months. In the winter they are compelled to pay out a great part of their wages for coal, for heavy clothing, and again for doctors and medicine for their families.

It is safe to say that the working man in the frozen North pays out at least one-half of his wages for things that depend upon the climate. The remaining half goes to pay for food and clothing, leaving him but little to lay aside.

Here in Laredo there is little demand upon the purse of the poor man because of our climate. The two or three months of what we call cold weather do not demand great fires to heat our houses. We do not need to spend a great part of our income for heavy clothing, and we live as much in the open air at that time as do the Northern people in any season of the year.

These would be great advantages for a manufacturer seeking a new location for his plant. When added to these advantages one considers the cheap power which would be readily available, it is hard to understand why a concerted effort is not made to induce manufacturers to locate here.

A rebuke to the politicians comes from the trade and labor council of Palestine, Texas. Out of the older Palestine came a rebuke to the politicians of that day—the scribes and pharisees—and its effects have been far-reaching.

It is announced that Huerta was "re-elected" on Sunday, and that he will resign in favor of Pedro Lascurain as president. The rebel statement that this will not put a stop to their campaign shows what their word is worth, as Lascurain was elected on the Madero ticket and is most assuredly a Maderista, while the rebels claimed that all they wanted was the elimination of Huerta.

The president's proposal to appropriate $200,000 for the relief of the Salem fire sufferers was emphatically turned down by the house committee. Is this a forerunner of further insurgency?

The case of the killing of Mrs. Bailey in a Long Island town promises to become as notorious as the murder of Florence Brown in Dallas. By the way, what ever became of the latter case?

The present difficulty between Villa and Carranza promises to resemble that between Taft and Roosevelt, as chronicled by Dooley, who reported Taft as follows: "Rosenfelt accuses me of bitin' the hand that fed me. But I ask ye, where wuz that hand when I bit it?"

BISHOP SESSUMS.

Rt. Rev. Davis Sessums, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Louisiana, was born in Houston, Texas, July 7, 1858, and received his education at the University of the South, graduating at the age of twenty years. Four years later he was ordained a deacon of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and later in the same year was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Gregg. After serving for a short time as curate of Grace Church, in Galveston, he became rector of the cathedral in Memphis, where he remained four years. He then became rector of Christ Church, New Orleans, officiating in that capacity until 1891, when he became bishop coadjutor. Within a short time he succeeded to the bishopric and was consecrated with elaborate ceremonies in which six bishops of the church took part.

SILLIMAN RETURNS TO MEXICO

United States Consul Who Fared Badly at Hands of Huerta Government Goes Back to Post.

Hon. John R. Silliman, the United States consul at Saltillo, who was arrested recently and jailed by orders of Huerta and later succeeded in being liberated and taken to Vera Cruz, from where he proceeded to Washington, arrived in Laredo this morning. Shortly after reaching here he proceeded to Nuevo Laredo and took the southbound train on his way to Saltillo to resume his duties as consul.

The story of Consul Silliman's arrest and hardships at the hands of the Huerta government are too well known to the reading public to necessitate reiteration here, suffice to say that, despite the remonstrances of his friends, he is returning to Mexico to represent his country as consul at Saltillo. Mr. Silliman was accompanied on his way south by a newspaper correspondent who came with him from Washington.

Urquidi Goes to Saltillo.

Francisco Urquidi, the representative of the constitutional government in Washington, and who arrived here yesterday morning, left this morning for Saltillo on the same train carrying U. S. Consul Silliman.

Small House Destroyed by Fire.

This morning about 9:30 an alarm of fire sounded from the second ward and the fire boys were quickly headed toward the Martin Plaza. On the side of the steep bank near the river front south of the plaza somebody had discovered a small shack in flames and turned in the alarm, but not until it was almost consumed. It was apparently constructed of material from dry goods boxes, with roof made of oil cans, but the frame and rafters were of ordinary lumber and the fireboys by their quick work saved the skeleton of the house from total destruction and then pulled it down.

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES JULY 25

Some Democratic Candidates For District and County Offices Will Have Opposition.

Two weeks from next Saturday the Democratic primaries will be held throughout the state of Texas, when the qualified voters will be given an opportunity of expressing their choice at the polls of the Democrats who are candidates for various offices from governor down to constable. Where there is no opposition from independents or Republicans the choice of the primaries is practically equivalent to the choice of a general election, for then the successful candidate has no opposition at the November election from a man of his own affiliation, except he should bolt the ticket and run independently.

Representative Asher R. Smith will be opposed for the legislature by B. F. George, while the race for state senator will be between two new aspirants, County Judge W. R. Perkins of Jim Wells county and Archer Parr of Duval county. For congress Hon. John N. Garner will have an opponent in the person of Mason Manney of Pearsall. In the race for nomination for county office on the Democratic ticket Sheriff Sanchez will be opposed by Antonio Salinas. Raymond Martin will not be a candidate for reelection as district clerk and several other changes will be made in the ticket. This refers to the Democratic ticket only, but there may be candidates for office at the November election by those who place themselves on Republican, independent or other ballots.

The Democratic primary committee of Webb county will hold a meeting on Monday, July 13, to select the officers of election and arrange the official ballot to be voted on at the primaries on July 25. These will be candidates who will make the race in the primaries as Democrats and are obligated to abide by the result thereof.

The sessions will continue until the end of the week. The large attendance and the attractive programme combine to give promise of a highly profitable meeting.

The programme has been prepared with the chief purpose of educating realty men up to the high ideals of better methods and giving better service to their clients and to the public. City planning will be discussed by some of the foremost experts of the country. Handling subdivisions, rentals, the artistry of home building, the relation of the real estate man to the community and his opportunities and obligations are other subjects that will be dealt with in papers and discussions.

The conservative faction of the Republican party in Wisconsin has nominated Levy H. Bancroft as candidate for United States senator.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY NO BUSINESS ENEMY

PRESIDENT WILSON ISSUED A STATEMENT SUPPORTING APPOINTMENT TO FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD.

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 8.—Declaring it unfair to regard the Democratic party as an enemy of either little or big business, President Wilson today issued a statement supporting Warburg and Jones for the federal reserve board.

Mr. Wilson said: "I am sure the Democratic party does not regard men as objects of suspicion merely because they had been connected with great business enterprises. The party knows that the country's business has been chiefly promoted by enterprises organized on a great scale, and that the vast majority of men connected with 'big' business are honest, incorruptible and patriotic. Those who have tried to make 'big' business what it ought to be are to be encouraged and honored whenever they respond to the call of public service."

Chicago Men See Wilson.

Washington, July 8.—Chicago's committee of big business men called on President Wilson today. They supported some of the features of the administration trust program, including the exemption of labor unions from trust classification, while they opposed some other features. Philadelphia, Pa., July 8.—"Colonel" George Wilkinson and his associate, Maylon Van Booskirk, whose promotion schemes are alleged to have about as substantial a foundation as the carpet-tack factory promoted by "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," was arraigned before a Federal commissioner today for a preliminary hearing on charges preferred by the Post-office authorities. The pair are charged with using the mails to defraud. On the strength of a project to transform the little hamlet of Spring City, Tenn., into an industrial and commercial rival of New York City, "Colonel" Wilkinson is alleged to have drawn thousands of dollars from the pockets of gullible persons in Europe as well as in many parts of this country.

COUNT ZEPPELIN

Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin, the distinguished aviator, known as "the conqueror of the air," was born in Wurtemberg, July 8, 1838. He entered the military service in his youth and when the American civil war began he was sent to the United States to serve as military attaché and observer for the government of Wurtemberg. Soon after his return to Germany he participated in the war between Prussia and Austria and four years later he distinguished himself in the war with France. Count Zeppelin retired from active military service in 1891 and has since devoted himself to the study and development of aerial navigation. Though more than a dozen of his great dirigible balloons met with disaster, nothing could shake Count Zeppelin's confidence in his ultimate success. He also succeeded in inspiring the German government with sufficient confidence to grant him a liberal subvention. In recent years one or more of the Zeppelin dirigibles has been engaged in making passenger trips between cities in Germany.

THE CARMAN CASE.

Some days ago a woman was killed by a shot while making a visit to a doctor in a Long Island village. The doctor was the only other person in the room at the time, although there were other patients in another room awaiting their turn with the doctor.

The doctor reported that a hand had been thrust through the window pane and that the shot was immediately fired. This was at first doubted by the police from the fact that the window was covered with a wire screen, but it was afterwards discovered that the screen was of the kind that is hinged to the window frame.

A number of suspicious circumstances surrounded the case, and the wife of the doctor was closely questioned. At first her answers seemed to be satisfactory but the testimony of other witnesses disputed her statement that she had not been in the office or on the ground floor for some time before the shooting.

A search of the house developed that Mrs. Carman, the doctor's wife, had had a dictagraph installed secretly in her husband's office, the other end being concealed in an upstairs room where she could listen to the conversations between the doctor and his woman patients. She explained this by saying that she was interested in knowing what the patients said to the doctor.

The final surprise of the case came when a detective testified that Mrs. Carman, hiding her identity, had asked him to shadow the doctor because of her jealousy of other women, and at the inquest she testified that had it not been for her daughter, she would have sought a divorce.

Thereupon Mrs. Carman was arrested in connection with the murder of the woman in her husband's office, and it now seems probable that she will be charged with the killing, which most people believe was a mistake, and that the fatal shot was intended for the doctor.

Nothing so far brought out in the evidence would tend to show that Mrs. Carman was justified in her suspicions concerning her husband's relations with his women patients, but so far the matter has been investigated only through a coroner's inquest, which was intended to probe the killing itself, not what might have led up to it.

Should it prove that Mrs. Carman actually fired the fatal shot, and that it was intended for her husband rather than for the woman patient who happened at the time to be in the office, it will only be another case of the unreasoning jealousy with which some people are afflicted, and which leads to some of the most sorrowful tragedies in the present century.

One of the reasons alleged for believing that the shot was intended to the doctor is his statement that Mrs. Carman, the victim of the tragedy, had never before visited his office, and that the occasion of her visit was the first time he had ever met her.

The husband is of good family, a successful physician, and is well known throughout the section in which he lived and practiced. There is little likelihood that he could successfully carry on the role of a Don Juan without the knowledge of other persons besides his wife, and in small communities like the little Long Island town the daily events are not only common knowledge, but form the topic of the everyday gossip. It is a regrettable case, for the innocent victim of the tragedy leaves a husband and children, who are heart-broken over the affair.

AN UNFOUNDED FEAR.

In view of the proposal to establish tuberculosis sanatoria in the southwest, the old dread of the unknown, that such establishments are a menace to the health of the neighbors has been revived, and it is to be expected that some opposition to the proposed establishment will be aroused.

The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis has issued a press bulletin, giving convincing proof that this dread is not founded on experience or knowledge of conditions. Indeed, so far from the truth is it, that a study of 150 institutions shows that not one case could be found where the assertions of opponents to the location of such institutions, that they would spread disease and injure property could be substantiated.

Dr. Edward L. Trudeau, who built the first tuberculosis sanatorium in the United States in 1885, says: "When I bought the first land on which the Adirondack Cottage Sanatorium is built, I paid $25 an acre for it, but the price was then thought absurdly high. My last purchase of five acres cost me $5,000. To my knowledge there has never been an employee who came to the sanatorium in sound health who developed tuberculosis while there; and a sanatorium can no more endanger the health of the neighborhood in which it is built, even if the residences are at its very gates, than it could if it were placed on top of a high mountain miles away from habitation."

One thing must be taken into consideration in connection with the antagonism on the part of some of the opponents of the location of the sanatorium could not be the success which it is desired to make it if it were built in the center of a congested city district. The surroundings of a sanatorium may help or hinder the purpose for which it is built, and abundance of fresh air and sunlight are absolutely necessary to a cure for tuberculosis.

It has been found that hospitals for the treatment of any sickness or the care of patients who have undergone operations are more successful when isolated from the crowded city streets. Some of the most successful hospitals are located without the cities, where the patients will not be disturbed by the noise of traffic, or by the dust and heat which are impossible to get rid of in a crowded residence or business section.

But it must be remembered that in a tuberculosis sanatorium the very things which threaten infection of others are carefully supervised. The sputum of the patients is destroyed, their clothing and bedding is kept carefully disinfected, and the fresh air and sunlight which are so necessary to the destruction of the tubercle bacilli are admitted in the proportions needed to give the best results.

There is no reason to believe that tuberculosis is transmitted by the air which surrounds the patients. The disinfection of the premises is so complete that no one who is not in intimate contact with a patient in the advanced stages of the disease could be in danger of infection.

And the establishment of such sanatoria would result in increased protection for those who are not afflicted with the disease. They would not be forced into contact with those who have contracted it, and the residences and boarding-houses which now harbor the unfortunate patients would be relieved of their presence.

Mr. Wilson says there is no reason why the Democratic party should be considered as opposed to either little or big business. Now if he can only convince Wall street of that fact, what a relief it will be.

People coming from Saltillo state emphatically that the constitutionalists will not confer with the Huerta delegates. Officials in Washington announce their belief that the conference will take place. Who is more likely to be best posted?

The Kansas supreme court has declared that Jamaica ginger is intoxicating, and has barred it from sale under the state prohibition laws. Vanilla and lemon extracts, cologne the doctor is his statement that Mrs. Carman, the victim of the tragedy, had never before visited his office, and that the occasion of her visit was the first time he had ever met her.

Progressive leaders in New York Roosevelt the other day to induce him to accept the nomination for governor. They should remember the result of Tom Platt's endeavor to snow him under by making him governor, and perhaps they would refrain from their attempts to start him in at the bottom of the ladder again.

CHAS. ROSS HAS A MODERN SILO

Will Use the Popular Method of Preservation of Feed for Animals and Install More Silos.

For some years past the United States Department of Agriculture, through its numerous bulletins issued for the benefit of farmers, has used every effort to modernize farm life and bring the farmers of the country up to that high standard of efficiency that today dominates in many communities throughout the Union. The department was the first to take cognizance of the benefits to be derived by farmers in storing feed-stuffs for the animals on the farm and agitating the use of silos, until today the farm that is without one of these useful conservators is anything but modern and economical.

Realizing the great benefits to be derived from the establishment and maintenance of silos in which waste of feedstuff is eliminated and the material is made more nutritious and beneficial to farm animals, farmers in Webb county are taking to the idea of silos. The silo, which practically comprises a great water tight and air tight pit, is for the preservation of green fodder, the contents being tightly pressed down so as to get rid of and permanently exclude the oxygen of the air and thereby prevent putrefactive fermentation. Desiccation being thus avoided, the ensilage of the fodder prevents the loss of feeding qualities. Silos are of great antiquity and were used by the ancients to preserve feed for stock. They were built in all manners in olden times, but the modern silos are generally constructed either above or underground of some substantial material like mortar, cement or brick. Tests have proven that the ensilage from these pits is of great benefit to cattle, horses, hogs, etc., and a small amount goes a long way, and here is where the economy comes in.

Charles Ross, owner of the McDermott farm just east of the city, has completed a modern underground silo on his farm and yesterday he took the Times reporter out to inspect his new acquisition. This silo is twenty feet deep, ten feet in diameter and is faced with a slight coating of cement. It has a capacity of thirty tons of chopped fodder. In a room adjoining the silo is a gasoline engine operating a chopping machine, and as fast as the feedstuff is cut it slides down a shaft into the silo. At this time the only material being converted into ensilage is corn—the plants being cut off at the surface of the ground and the stalk, leaves and corn being ground up and thrown into the silo. The process of fermentation at this season of the year will be rapid and within thirty days Mr. Ross expects to begin feeding his stock on ensilage of far more beneficial and nutritious value in fattening than ordinary feeding stuff.

The installation of one or more silos in a community is the nucleus of a general adoption of the system by all other farmers, and hence the experiment of Mr. Ross will be watched with interest, and it is safe to say that within a few months every farm in this section which has no method of food preservation of this character will have silos established on the farms. Mr. Ross is already arranging for installing more silos on his farm and within the next few days will start work on two more pits.

Lung Trouble Yielded to This Medicine

If you are suffering with Lung Trouble, or if you know of some unfortunate person so afflicted, would you take the trouble of fully investigating a medicine which has brought about complete recovery in a number of very serious cases? To Eckman's Alternative, a remedy for Throat and Lung Troubles, has been given the fullest credit of restoring health in a large number of cases. Read this:—5223 Girard Ave., Phila., Pa.

"Gentlemen: In the winter of 1903 I had an attack of Grippe, followed by Pneumonia, and later by Lung Trouble. In the winter of 1904 I had cough, night sweats, fever and raised quantities of awful-looking stuff and later I had many hemorrhages; at one time three in three successive days. Milk and eggs became so distasteful I could keep nothing down. Three physicians treated me. I was ordered to the mountains, but did not go. Eckman's Alternative was recommended by a friend. After taking a small quantity I had the first quiet night's sleep for weeks. My improvement was marked from the first. I gained strength and weight and appetite. I never had another hemorrhage and my cough gradually lessened until entirely gone. I am perfectly well."

WARM POLITICS IN GEORGIA.

Atlanta, Ga., July 10.—Joseph Brown's announcement of his candidacy for the United States senate to succeed Hoke Smith has set the political fireworks in Georgia to snapping and sizzling at a furious rate. For some time past the campaign for the governorship and the short-term senatorship has furnished some more or less interesting skirmishes, but it remained for Joe Brown, twice governor of the State and a past master at the game of politics, to prime and adjust the heavy artillery that will assure a genuine battle. With the announcement of his candidacy the hard-fought campaign begins in earnest. Flying T. B. Felder and John R. Cooper, a flag, brass bands, stump speakers, prominent attorneys of Macon. The straw votes, and all the other ancient and honored appurtenances will be on the job from now until the polls close on primary day.

With two senatorships and a governorship to fill, the forthcoming summer primaries will constitute the hottest contested election in the history of the State. Interest now centers largely in the fight of Hoke Smith for re-election, though until very recently it appeared that there would be no one of importance to contest his return to the senate. The situation as it then appeared was without a parallel in the history of Georgia politics. In the past Hoke Smith had been obliged to fight for everything he ever received from Georgia, with more than one defeat chalked up against him, but this time he appeared to be considered so strong that he would be returned virtually without opposition.

A few weeks ago, however, it became apparent to the political world that Brown was getting ready to run for something. This was evidenced by a renewal of his long standing war on the labor unions. But support of the writers. So far Mr. even then it was supposed that he Dorsey has not disclosed his intentions would come out as a candidate for the short-term senatorships to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Bacon. But there were several reasons why the former Governor preferred to tackle Hoke Smith for the long-term senatorship rather than enter the free-for-all race for the short term.

The principal of these reasons probably lies in the fact that Brown is the leader of the anti-Smith faction and would rather defeat Smith for re-election than stumble into a gold mine. The presence of Governor Slaton among the entries in the short-term contest also probably influenced Brown in entering the long-term contest. Slaton has always been a close friend and political ally of Brown. In adopting his present course Brown will at least have a chance of killing two birds with one stone—a chance to even up accounts with Hoke Smith and at the same time aid his friend Slaton in his contest for the short-term.

In addition to Governor Slaton there are three active candidates for the unexpired term of Senator Bacon sure a genuine battle. With the announcement of his candidacy the hard-fought campaign begins in earnest. Flying T. B. Felder and John R. Cooper, a flag, brass bands, stump speakers, prominent attorneys of Macon. The straw votes, and all the other ancient and honored appurtenances will be on the job from now until the polls close on primary day.

For the governorship, there is a genuine contest, with the winner much in doubt. Among the active candidates at present are William J. Harris, late Director of the United States Census; Judge Nat S. Harris, of Macon; J. Randolph Anderson, of Savannah, and Judge L. G. Hardman, of Commerce. Another possible entry, and a formidable figure, is Solicitor General Hugh Dorsey, of Atlanta. Mr. Dorsey was the prosecuting attorney in the case of Leo Frank, the young factory superintendent now under conviction and sentence of death for the murder of little Mary Phagan. Dorsey's successful work in this case has made him something of a popular idol, particularly among the people of the rural districts. For many weeks his mail has been flooded with letters from his admirers urging him to get into the gubernatorial race, and promising him the standing war on the labor unions. But support of the writers. So far Mr. even then it was supposed that he Dorsey has not disclosed his intentions would come out as a candidate for the short-term senatorships to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Bacon. But there were several reasons why the former Governor preferred to tackle Hoke Smith for the long-term senatorship rather than enter the free-for-all race for the short term.

One of the interesting side issues of the present campaign is furnished by Ralph O. Cochran, a real estate dealer of Atlanta, who is out as a candidate for the United States senate against Hoke Smith and who promised to be the latter's only opponent until ex-governor Brown got into the run. In announcing his candidacy Mr. Cochran stated that he is not a rich man and is without sufficient funds to make a campaign, but will allow the people to vote for him if they wish. If they wish otherwise it is all right with him, he announces.

Washington's recent invasion of the West came very near putting the team on the rocks. The Senators were successful in only five of their sixteen games.

STANDARDIZING THE BABIES!

(By James Montague.)

They have standardized the babies in this scientific day. They would save the perfect specimens and throw the rest away. But they can't convince the mothers of the undersized and weak. That they're not the kind of babies that a Perfect Race must seek. And the homely little babies get as tender loving care. And are cuddled just as fondly as the Beautiful and Fair.

Curious creatures are these mothers, each enraptured by the charms of the palpitating bundle that she tumbles in her arms. Each contending that her baby is entitled to the prize. Irrespective of all standards as to strength or weight or size. Not a single one admitting that her little failure's place. Should be taken by a stranger for the Glory of the Race.

Well, though science may be baffled, though its new hygiene charts May be mocked by the affection that is born in mothers' hearts. Possibly the little babies that have failed to pass the test. May become in adolescence just as lively as the rest. Science works exceeding wonders but in Nature's gentle plan. Mother love can do for babies more than Science even can.

ULSTER'S ULTIMATUM.

Tomorrow is the 224th anniversary of the battle of the Boyne, in which William of Orange, who became the king of England, defeated the forces of James II. and overthrew the Catholics of Ireland.

It is also the day which may be celebrated in history as that of a new rebellion against the British crown, for tomorrow the Ulsterites announce that they will make a warlike demonstration to prove to the British government that they are too powerful to permit the passage of the bill which is to grant Home Rule to Ireland.

The population of Ireland is given in the latest census returns as 4,390,218, while that of England is a trifle over 34,000,000, without counting Scotland's population of 4,759,521, and that of Wales of 2,027,610. The population of Ulster, one of the ancient "kingdoms" of Ireland, is given as 1,578,572, of which not all are of the "true Ulster breed," which comes from the Scottish covenanters sent to populate that province after the defeat of the Irish by Cromwell.

The British empire has a population of 435,000,000, and her available forces number several millions, of which the least are the Ulster people and their sympathizers throughout the empire.

In other parts of Ireland the population is almost overwhelmingly Catholic, as opposed to the Protestant Ulsterites. The Home Rule which it proposed to establish would not be an injustice to the people of Ulster, while it would be a tardy act of justice to the whole people of Ireland.

But the Ulsterites dread the results of giving to the people whom they and their ancestors have oppressed for centuries the power to make their own laws, and for this reason they oppose with all their force the Home Rule bill and all that it calls for.

It is true that in Scotland and Wales there are many thousands of Protestants who are in sympathy with the Ulsterites, for purely sentimental reasons. This is the same class which opposed the Catholic enfranchisement bill, which sought to prevent Catholics from holding office, and which now seeks to prevent an entire people from securing a measure of the freedom of which they were robbed through the victory of a political party.

It is urged by some that the present fight is not a religious one, which is in part true. Neither the teachings of the Catholics nor the Protestants contain the doctrine that people are to be oppressed because of their religious belief.

The freedom which has come to the Jew in Great Britain, where a member of that faith has been Lord Mayor of London, as well as Prime Minister, has extended to the Catholics, and today there are few countries where persecution for religion's sake still obtains.

But the foundation of the hatred which the Ulsterites have for a free Ireland is based upon the old hatred for Papistry which caused their ancestors to disfranchise all of that faith, and no matter what it is called, it still crops out on the surface whenever there is occasion.

For the members of a politico-religious party to defy the power of the British empire seems so ridiculous that it borders upon the childish. And yet it may result in one of the greatest tragedies of modern times—a civil war with a religious slant.

TH MILITARY HIGHWAY.

Word comes from Washington that the senate military committee has approved Senator Sheppard's bill appropriating $25,000 for a survey of the proposed military highway along the Rio Grande.

So far the matter has not been brought up in the house, but it is certain that with Mr. Garner's active championship the bill will meet with consideration when it passes the senate and goes to the house.

Of late there has been little heard concerning the highway, as the federal legislators have a leisurely method of procedure and do not take action in a hurry. So far as local action is concerned, there is little that can be done for the present, but when the bills are ready for action in both house and senate, an appeal from citizens and local organizations would go far toward convincing the congressmen and senators that the sentiment of the border residents is unanimous for the highway.

As a mere matter of military advantage the highway would be important. It would permit a constant patrol of the entire border along the river, as well as the rapid transportation of troops and supplies in case of emergency.

But the importance of the road locally is that it would provide a means of communication between the river towns, something that has been lacking ever since the settlement of the border, and would enable the people living on the ranches along the river and further inland a means of reaching their trade centers.

Besides this, it would offer a distinct advantage to the promoters of an interurban line, both up and down the river from Laredo, and would be the means of starting a network of connecting lines which would give to the entire river section a ready means of communication.

The project to utilize the great power which at present is going to waste along the river, by installing water power plants at available points, would furnish unlimited power for the transmission lines which would be built in connection with an electric railway system, and would result in cheap power for the railways, as well as power for manufacturing plants which would follow a transportation system.

All of this could be better accomplished through the military highway, and the government would undoubtedly be glad to grant a franchise to an electric railway system on reasonable terms, for the reason that such an electric railway paralleling the road would give the federal authorities—military and postal—a cheap means of transportation for their needs.

The trouble along the border has not been settled; in fact, the worst is probably yet to come. In case of hostilities such a road would be imperative, and it seems probable that hostilities cannot be averted for much longer.

While the construction of such a highway would not necessarily take very long to complete, the preliminaries, including the survey and the debates over the appropriations needed, may be extended over many months.

But with a sufficient force of men, given the authority and the money needed to do the work, the road could be constructed in a few months. It would seem wise for the propaganda for an electric railway system to be inaugurated at once. The physical difficulties of such a road would not be the greatest. The financing of the company would require the most time and labor.

But the highway now seems certain to come. Constitutional stock is looking up within the past few days. The capture of Guaymas after the federalists had evacuated it, and the patching up of the Villa-Carranza break all tend to raise the spirits of the rebel sympathizers. But Obregon will have to take a back seat for Villa now. Then look for trouble.

The Ulsterites are preparing for a "demonstration" on the anniversary of Boyne Water. In other words, they are preparing to declare open defiance to Great Britain by marching under arms through Belfast streets. If King George accepts the defiance, Britannia will no longer rule the waves—she will be too busy sweeping up the fragments.

That must have been an awful disappointment to Alvarado when the American warships refused to permit the usual butchery of defenseless people on the occasion of the federal evacuation of Guaymas.

Despite the recent rebel victories—or is it because of them?—it is announced that Huerta has sent his minister of finance to Europe to arrange for a new loan. Whatever else may be falling, Huerta seems to be keeping his perilous balance.

John Wanamaker, noted merchant and philanthropist, was born in Philadelphia, July 11, 1838. After a few years of country-school life, he obtained employment in a book store, where he remained until 1856, when he removed to Indiana with his father. He remained in the West but a year, however, returning to Philadelphia in 1857. After working as a clerk for some time he went into the clothing business on his own account and soon won for himself great popularity and financial success. Mr. Wanamaker was one of the first to establish what is now commonly known as a department store. Despite his vast business interests he has found time to take an active interest in many social and religious movements. He has been active also in Republican politics and from 1889 to 1893 he served as Postmaster-General of the United States.

INJUNCTION NOT APPLICABLE

Constitutionalist Currency Shipment Received Here Does Not Come Under Provisions of Order.

Regarding the large shipment of constitutional currency received here for delivery to Y. R. Galindo, the internal revenue agent of the constitutionalists at Nuevo Laredo, there seems to be a misunderstanding on the part of some people which connects the shipment with the recent temporary injunction secured by General Carranza against General Villa restraining him from being able to secure shipments of currency through the United States. This was a federal decree and applied only to the delivery of paper money to Villa. But now that the two big chiefs have settled their differences, if reports are true, no doubt this injunction will be dissolved.

Anyhow, the shipments of constitutional currency which have been received here during the past ten days came consigned to a representative of the Carranza faction in the controversy and hence the application of the injunction would not be necessary. The signatures to be placed on the currency to validate it will be those of Carranza officials and the circulation process will be through similar channels. No doubt the supply of new currency, together with considerable more yet to be delivered, will be used in paying off the constitutionalist troops through Northern and Central Mexico and in purchasing supplies for the army, operating the rebel government and for other purposes for which the currency has been issued.

KILLED IN BATTLE OF ZACATECAS

"Pepe" Fernandez, Captain of Volunteers in Federal Artillery, Met Death at Zacatecas.

According to information reaching Laredo yesterday in letters to friends and relatives, Jose Fernandez, a captain of volunteers in the Mexican federal army, attached to an artillery command, was among those slain by the rebels in the recent battle of Zacatecas, when that city was captured by the constitutionalists.

Fernandez, who leaves a family at present in this city, was well known in Laredo. His home was in Nuevo Laredo where he had gained a reputation as an amateur bull-fighter. When the volunteers were organized shortly after the fall of the Madero administration, Fernandez was commissioned as a captain and served during the time that the federal army supporting the Huerta regime remained in Nuevo Laredo, leaving that city with the incendiaries, Generals Guardiola and Quintana, when they evacuated and burned the town across the way. Since his departure from Nuevo Laredo very little had been heard of Fernandez or any others of the Mexican federalists until news of his death in the battle of Zacatecas reached here yesterday.

On information furnished by one of the sneaky spotters kept on duty by the constitutionalists in Nuevo Laredo, A. Dahrooge, a well known business man of San Antonio, who went to Nuevo Laredo this morning on a short business trip, was taken into custody by several rebel huskies and was being dragged to jail on a charge of "being a spy, a friend of Amador Sanchez and a man engaged in fostering Huerta interests." As he was being taken to the bastille Dahrooge succeeded in having his captors stop a minute at the store of Vice Consul Shelby Theriot, and after explaining matters to the vice consul that of legal got busy and secured the release of Dahrooge. It is not necessary to say that the Syrian gent delayed his stay in Nuevo Laredo no longer than necessary, but he came to the American side in extra quick time—and he no more will wander past the monument. There was no justifiable excuse for the arrest of Dahrooge, but those sneaks who are always trying to get men into trouble over there need no reason to cause a man to be embarrassed by their dirty, hounding intrigue.

MILITARY HIGHWAY SURVEY

Organized Efforts of Laredo Chamber of Commerce With Other Bodies Recognized in Senate's Action.

The approval by the United States senate military committee yesterday of the Sheppard bill for an appropriation of $25,000 for a survey of the proposed military highway along the Rio Grande comes as the reward of months of persistent work by the Laredo Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with all of the other chambers of commerce from Brownsville to Eagle Pass.

A general meeting was held early this year at the Elk's Hall in Laredo, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of discussing the advisability and the necessity of taking steps to induce the United States government to construct a permanent highway along the Rio Grande from Brownsville through Laredo to Eagle Pass and thence to El Paso.

Resolutions were adopted at that meeting outlining many of the principal reasons why such a roadway should be built and these resolutions were formally presented to Senator Morris Sheppard.

Shortly after this gathering a meeting was called at Eagle Pass of all of the chambers of commerce along the border and as the result of their deliberations delegates were sent to Washington in February from Eagle Pass, Brownsville, Pearsall, San Antonio and Laredo.

Mr. Samuel Mackin was sent as the delegate of the Laredo Chamber of Commerce and the above named delegation presented the matter fully to Senator Sheppard and Congressman Garner. The cooperation of our senator and congressman was obtained. Accompanied by the senator the delegation called on Secretary of War Garrison, General Anson Mills, Chief of the International Boundary Commission, the chief of the good roads division of the agricultural department and Secretary McAdoo of the treasury department.

The support of several of the officials in these departments was obtained by pointing out the advantages to be derived by the government and the general benefits in the development of the country along the border. The immigration authorities were shown the benefits to be derived in the exclusion of undesirable aliens. The Treasury Department was interested in the utility of the highway in favor of it is thought that the survey will be made and will terminate with Department of Agriculture was so favorably impressed with the proposition that the delegates were told that if they failed to get the appropriation for the survey to make application to the department for a survey of the removal of Fort McIntosh will be virtually eliminated.

element, will be to determine the practicability of the project from an engineering standpoint, its cost and utility.
